Abraham Lincoln

16TH PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

(1809-1865)

"If my personal description of me is thought desirable, it may be said, I am, in height, six feet four inches, nearly; lean in flesh, weighing on an average, one hundred and eighty pounds; dark complexion, with coarse black hair, and grey eyes—no other marks or handy recollection—A. Lincoln"

So penned Mr. Lincoln in partial response to a request for his autobiography. Earlier in his word-sketch, he chronicled his life—from birth in Hardin County, Kentucky—through boyhood in Indiana and Illinois ("There was absolutely nothing to excite ambition for education. Of course when I came of age I did not know much.")—up to the latter half of the 1850s.

"I was losing interest in politics, when the repeal of the Missouri Compromise aroused me again," he continued. "What I have done since then is pretty well known."

With this last, self-effacing remark, it might be safely stated, now, that President Lincoln lived the "American Dream." From humble beginnings to an almost-sanctified national—and international—heroism . . . and, of course, a very special place in history.

"I was raised to farm work, which I continued till I was twenty two." From age 21, Lincoln tried other occupations: railyard hand, flatboatman, storekeeper-clerk, blacksmith; but found no answers in these pursuits.

Politics; study of law; four terms in the Illinois House of Representatives; admission to that state's bar; a successful law practice in Springfield, Ill.; marriage to Mary Todd of Kentucky—their four sons; a law-firm senior partnership, and rising to the top of the Illinois bar; failure (twice) to be elected to the U.S. Congress; successful election (as a Whig) to the U.S. House of Representatives; and failure as a candidate for a U.S. Senate seat . . . These were the "normal" events in the life of a 19th-century American lawyer and politician.

Lincoln-Douglas debates in Illinois; Lincoln's nomination in Chicago; his election in 1860 as 16th President of the United States; subsequent outbreak of Civil War in 1861; statesmanship; the Emancipation Proclamation . . .

Commander-in-Chief . . . His re-election to the Presidency in 1864, with the war continuing . . .

This was Abraham Lincoln's life . . . until it was taken from him by conspiratorial assassination in Ford's Theater, Washington, D.C., April 14, 1865. Lincoln never regained consciousness. He died the following morning, April 15th—Good Friday.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As the current television season creeps along to its spring windup, the networks are building the entertainment schedules for next season.

Experts are picking over an assortment of pilot programs, short sample films and outlines hunting for new shows to replace the 20 to 30 year-end drop-outs of the three networks. A few shows are set, some others are tentatively pencilled in time spots. Salesmen are looking for sponsors.

It appears that the tongue-in-cheek super-agents, the comic strip spin-offs and the nighttime serials have outlived their usefulness. Next season we will see, almost without a doubt, the return of the old-fashioned private eye and an assortment of police and special agent stories, played straight. The emphasis is on comedy for the half-hour shows, action-adventure for the hour-long series.

Success of animal series like "Daktari" and "Flipper" obviously has impressed producers. There are six more available, including two about elephant boys in India and two about game wardens with sons.

There are six or seven science fiction series available, including one about a fellow frozen in ice for 100 years who comes back into action.

There are two comedies about bigamy, one involving a man with two wives and the other about a woman with two husbands.

There is the usual assortment of westerns — seven new ones. ABC will show film of the Clay-Terrell heavyweight fight on its Saturday afternoon "Wide World of Sports."

Jackie Gleason's Feb. 25 CBS show will celebrate his birthday he will be 51 the next day.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!
This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

A QUESTION OF LOYALTY

Dear Helen: I have a girl friend who is very shy and sensitive. She has never dated, but now has a mad crush on a boy who hardly knows she's alive.

Well, wouldn't you know: this boy—a real doll—called me up the other night and asked me for a date. I'd love to accept, BUT I put him off.

Helen, if I go out with him, my girl friend will think I'm a traitor. She'll just feel all the more inferior, as she already thinks I'm a "femme fatale." Really, I'm not.

This may end our friendship. She'll never understand. I like her very much, but I like the boy too. My turning him down wouldn't mean she'd get him. What shall I do?—TOO LOYAL?
Dear Too: Loyalty will only lose you a nice boy friend—and it won't gain one for your shy chum. If she doesn't understand, then she's using her sensitivity as a club to get her own way and she might as well learn now that it won't work.—H.

PERSONAL TO "STILL GOOD"

So you think you "didn't do anything wrong" just because you didn't get pregnant. My dear you are very, very wrong. If a teenage girl allows intimacies—and that includes heavy petting—too-her reputation slides down from "good girl" to "good make-out." Fast!

When a boy talks, all the guys listen, and boys have a great need to brag. Don't be surprised if some odd characters ask you out—and don't accept 'em—H.

Dear Helen: I've loved this girl for three years. At first we seemed inseparable. I would do anything in the world for her, still will. But the next year she started trying to get the attention of other boys, and this year she is trying even more so. She sees-saws between me and other boys, though she says she likes me best, most of the time. Is she tricking me, playing hard to get, or playing cat and mouse?—CONFUSED, AGE 16

Dear Con: I'd say she wants to play the field. Let her, with the understanding two can play at this game. Perhaps you both need a change.—H.

Dear Helen: I'm in a popular group, or clique as some say. Well, our principal called me in and told me we would have to mix with other girls, like the duds (goody-goody). We go to a private school.

Now, Helen, the duds have their groups, too, so they aren't bad off. This bunch I've been with for seven years have a ball together. We goof off but we're not a bad clique. Should we have to ruin everything by asking in people who wouldn't even have fun with us?—CONFUSED CHICK

Dear Con: I imagine your principal wishes some of the "goody-goody" would rub off on you "go go" girls, and the so-called "duds" would, in turn, learn a little "go" from YOU. Every-one might profit.

You don't have to make them your bosom buddies, but try being friendly. Cliques foster narrow-mindedness—and this doesn't create well-rounded adults.—H.

Dear Helen: I am a boy of almost 11. I have two big problems. The first is a bully, I try to ignore him, but there's where my second problem comes in. I throw my temper like a tiger. Then my teacher bawls me out. You have heard my problems. Tell me what to do—A. V.

Dear A: Sometimes the only cure for a bully is one big blow up where you back up your temper with fists. I won't recommend this, but why don't you talk it over with your Dad and see if he agrees with me?—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star. Copyright, 1967, King Syndicate, Inc.

Aussies Elect a Labor Moderate

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Gough Whitlam, a leader of the moderate wing of Australia's Labor party, was elected today to succeed Arthur A. Calwell as party leader.

Calwell's bitter attacks on Australia's part in the Vietnam war was believed largely responsible for the overwhelming defeat the party suffered in the last election.

Calwell, 70, announced recently that he was retiring because of his eye.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Solder is to metal what glue is to wood. It is a method of joining metal surfaces without drilling or pounding, without using bolts, rivets or self-tapping screws.

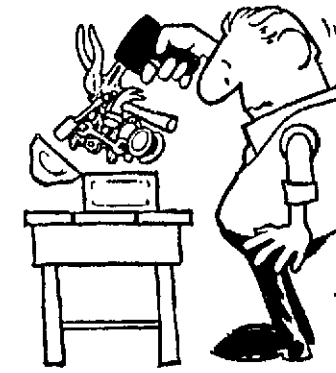

Soldering is not difficult. Done with care it will provide a neat and secure joint. In many instances, it is the only way of doing the job.

Equipment is simple, inexpensive and should be part of the basic tool kit in every home where the owner attempts his own repairs.

The old, heavy soldering iron that was heated in the flame of a blow torch is pretty much a thing of the past. It has been replaced by the electric soldering iron or the faster heating electric soldering gun.

For heavier work (sweating pipes, joining gutters), the propane torch with its own fuel supply and versatile control has replaced the old gasoline blow torch.

The other items you will

need are solder and flux. Solder is a soft metal, generally half tin and half lead. It may come in wire or bar form.

Prepare Metal With Flux

Flux is a material, generally in paste form, that prepares the metal by cleaning it of metal oxides. Rosin flux is used for electrical connections only. Acid flux is used on all other work. There are a variety of acid fluxes for different metals.

Some wire solder is available with flux in it. Known as core solder, this eliminates the need for separate flux. Flux is used only for the final cleaning, removing film invisible to the eye. A thorough cleaning is necessary before you apply it. Metal surfaces must be free from dirt, rust, grease, wax and other foreign matter.

A wire brush, emery cloth or steel wool—or all three—will prepare the metal for soldering. Get the surfaces good and shiny.

Heat is applied to the surfaces to be soldered, not to the solder itself. Do not apply solder to the hot iron and allow it to drip onto the surfaces to be joined. These surfaces must be made hot enough so that they melt the solder at its touch.

Applying solder to cold work will result in chum's of solder that do not adhere to the metal instead of a thin, firm seam of solder.

Heat rises, so apply heat from below the work whenever possible.

Hawaiian Queen Fills Sweet Tooth

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) Mike Nichols has a dog who was so easily trained in the fine arts of being housebroken and heeling and that sort of dogishness that Mike thinks he must have been a dog in his previous life.

"Nonsense," said Buck Henry, when Mike mentioned the theory to him. Mike and Buck are writing the screenplay of "The Graduate" together. "Sheer nonsense. I agree that this is his second life, but he wasn't a dog before—he was someone who owned a dog."

All 285 pounds of Jocelyne LaGarde stopped off in Hollywood, and the southern California candy industry is now fiscally sound.

"Ah, you have the best candy here," said Mlle. LaGarde, who was so delightful as the Hawaiian queen in "Hawaii." "I buy plenty chocolates to take back to Tahiti. I have been all over the world and the only other place I find good candy is Dayton, Ohio."

"I have heard that Switzerland has good chocolate. Yes, but not as good as Dayton and Hollywood."

Jocelyne LaGarde was just sitting there in Papeete, Tahiti's big city, minding her own business and dreaming of chocolates when the scouts for "Hawaii" found her.

"At first," she says, "I don't want to be actress. But the people, they are so sad. They say they have been looking all over Polynesia for two years and I am what they held together with clamps, pliers or other means until the solder hardens. This only takes a few minutes.

When soldering wire connections, make a simple twist connection first, then apply solder.

Most Common Usage of Solder

One of the most common uses for soldering is the joining of copper water pipe. If you have just cut the tubing, make certain that it is free of burrs and loose bits of metal. Use a file to make the edges absolutely smooth, then polish with steel wool.

Use a blow torch for soldering tubing. Coat the surfaces with flux, join them together and then heat by moving the flame all around. When hot enough, touching the solder to seam will cause it to melt and flow into the joint by capillary action.

There should be no water in the pipe when working. Make certain it is dry.

Aside from its obvious uses in plumbing and electrical work, remember that soldering is useful for mending many objects. Costume jewelry can be repaired with a drop of solder. Children's toys can be given a new lease on life.

Bronze and copper are easily soldered; so is lightweight sheet metal. Do not attempt to solder cast iron. Aluminum calls for special solder and flux, and extremely high heat. The results are not always satisfactory. Stainless steel requires hydrochloric acid and high heat, which discolors it.

Spain Jails 7 for Disturbances

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Security police today announced the arrest of seven persons they said were promoters of recent student and worker protests and ringleaders of two Communist organizations.

Police said two of the seven were members of a leftist student group and the others belonged to Communist organizations that receive support and direction from pro-Chinese Communist in Italy.

The disorders began Jan. 27 with a violent demonstration at Madrid University in support of workers protesting rising living costs.

Charles Dickens visited the United States in 1842 and 1867.

want. So I say, all right, I will try."

Mme. Leonne Cave, the attractive wife of the owner of the local Hertz agency, was assigned the task of teaching her English. She did her work well. Now Mlle. LaGarde speaks beautifully, a rich voice booming out of her majestic frame.

"Would I act again?" she says. "Nobody ask me. I would, yes, if it was something I like. I am not an actress. I could not do imitation of something. I could only do myself."

Dody and David Westheimer—he wrote "Von Ryan's Express"—hosted a "Poor Boy" party to celebrate nothing. Among the poor boys who attended were Lee J. Cobb, Ray Walston, director Arthur Hiller, producer Felix Jackson. Highlight of the affair was the screening of the television pilot Westheimer had created some years ago. It was called Campo 44, and it told of highjinks and lowjinks in a POW camp—and it was made before Hogan's Heroes.

Afterwards, Ray Walston tried to option it—"I think it would make a great feature and I'd like to play the sergeant." Ray, incidentally, was offered the lead in the musical, "Sherry," now trying out in Boston, a part originated by George Sanders. But he turned it down.

The stars of "The Epic of Josie," now shooting at Universal, are Doris Day and Peter Graves. But those in the know would disagree—the bar's the star.

The studio prop department's prize is a 48-year-old mahogany bar, and "The Epic of Josie" is its 25th movie.

In its time, the bar has costarred with Marlene Dietrich ("Destry Rides Again") and Hoot Gibson ("The Calgary Kid") and Gary Cooper and Buck Jones and everybody who bent an elbow at the studio.

W. C. Fields loved it, after appearing with Mae West and the bar in "My Little Chickadee." Fields decided to buy it and put a $20 deposit down on it. But before he could collect it, he died.

Joan Crosby's TV Notebook

NEW YORK—(NEA)—No one is sparing the Rod and spoiling the enjoyment of movie-goers when it comes to Rod Taylor.

He's one of Hollywood's busiest actors who currently can be seen as a bumbling secret agent in MGM's "The Liquidator," and as a hotelman in Warner Brothers' "Hotel." He is also a producer in the midst of working out details on "an anticliche western" called "Chuka."

"It will star Ernest Borgnine, John Mills, Luciana Paluzzi," said Taylor. "Will I be in it? Yeah. We can't get Gregory Peck. The guy should look like Peck, and I have to do it—pudgy Taylor."

He's far from pudgy, but he is at times profane, profound and was propelled into movies mainly as a result of his popular but short-lived television series, Hong Kong.

"I liked the series. It was the beginning of the anti-hero," he said. "James Garner and Steve McQueen made the jump from TV to movies, but they were wiser than I. They left their shows. Mine stopped for me."

His series didn't have a movie star to his face, you're not doing him a favor. "When you say movie stars you think of people like Gable and Garbo. It will take another 10 years for my generation of punks to prove we have earned the title. Let's have a little humility among actors instead of a grab-the-money-and-run attitude. But at least we are out of the era of the pretty gas station attendants."

The return of Dragnet to NBC-TV after a seven-year absence makes you wonder if this could be the beginning of a trend towards reviving some popular television shows of the past such as 87th Precinct, Hong Kong, It's a Man's World, The Rogues—you name your favorite.

But NBC and Jack Webb agree that Dragnet 1967 is an exception. "We felt it was high time a good cop got exposure," says Grant Tinker, programming vice president.

"We have been talking about bringing back Dragnet for two years," Webb says, "but it was felt the timing was not right. We feel it's closer now."

First ratings on the show were good but, as Webb says, first ratings are not a good indication of future ratings.

"It's premature to second-guess a trend. Speaking as a television viewer—I watch television a lot—I would like to see a little more variety. I think we're weary of spoofs on spoofs of spoofs."

"It's typical in this business. We get a hit tune and beat it to death. Television and Hollywood set hits and drive them into a rut."

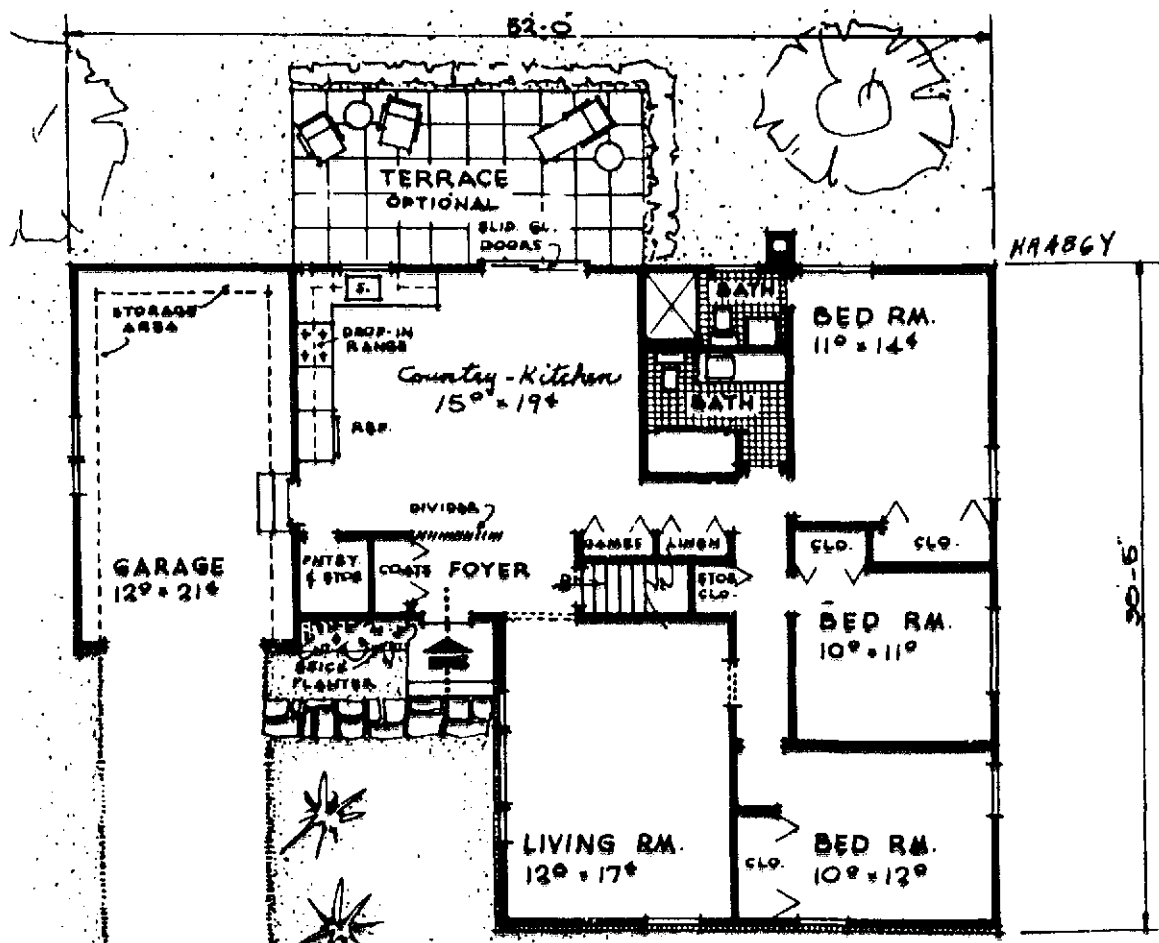

As usual, Webb is meticulous in accurately presenting the Los Angeles Police Department. "We are truthful and honest in our stories, although we occasionally have to make slight changes for dramatic value. But the police end is always 100 per cent accurate."

Mrs. Jesus Flores told Municipal Court Judge James A. Maloney she had forgotten about a $1 parking ticket she received 82 days ago.

Maloney fined her four cents—the same charged for overdue books at the library—for each day the ticket was unpaid. The ticket plus the fine totaled $4.28.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

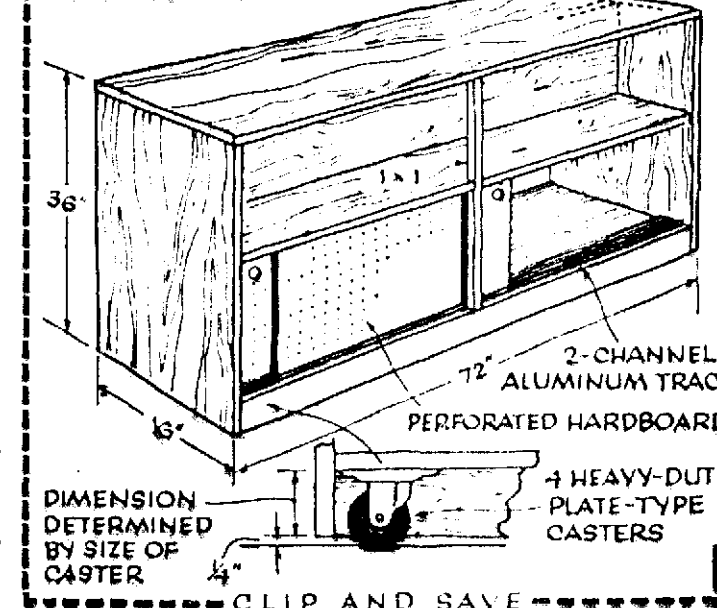

THIS RANCH-STYLE HOME has a "country kitchen" ideal for the supervision of children. This large work-play area eliminates the need for children to use the more formal living room for their activities. Location of the living room preserves the quietness it deserves. Windows over the kitchen sink allow for supervision of children's outdoor activities. There is a full basement under the 1,302-square-foot home and the one-car garage easily could be converted to a two-car. BRETHREN BE NOT WEARY IN WELL DOING - 2 Timothy 3:13

A robust man you are today, - Full of vigor, vitality and vim;
But through some common stroke of fate, - You must depend only on Him. Yes, when your stretcher rolls into the room,
The physicians will do their best; Their skills and tools will work in rhyme, - But remember Brother,
It Takes God Every Time.

God's assistants are brothers of well doing but they would be the first to join the Psalmist of old that It Takes God Every Time.
You may find Him at the little church on the corner...
Have you Tried?

Seek Ye First The Kingdom of God
And His Righteousness;
And All These Things Shall Be Added Unto You.

You Can Do This Best Through Regular Worship At Church. Our Ministers and These Sponsoring Firms Urge You To Attend Your Church Regularly.

Change Works Its Corrosion
Upon Us As We Approach
Our Rendezvous With Death
But, We Are Under Sentence
To Honor God, To Ever Support His Church

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Bridge is not an exact science and never will be. We point out in "Win at Bridge with Jacoby and Son" that there is disagreement on how to respond to Blackwood when you are void of a suit.

The Jacoby method is to start by deciding if your void is a good one. Just what is a good void, anyway?

A good void is one in an unbid suit or in a suit that has been bid by your opponents. Now take a look at the bidding of today's hand. North has bid hearts and clubs and spades has become the agreed trump suit. South bids four no-trump and North is void of diamonds. It must be a good void. How can he show it?

Our method is to show the number of aces but to bid six instead of five. Thus, North responds six hearts to the Blackwood four no-trump. South knows that North has two aces and is void of a suit and from the bidding South knows the void is in diamonds. South can bid seven spades and be certain of success provided the opening lead isn't ruffed by East.

It looks as if South took a chance when he bid four no-trump with those three diamonds. It wasn't much of a chance. North had opened the bidding with one heart, had gone to three clubs over two spades and then raised spades. South was prepared to gamble that North would not hold as many as two diamonds and would have gone to six spades if North had merely shown two aces.

A final word of caution. This is a fine bid but be sure you and your partner are in complete agreement before you start using it.

Bobcats Slam Bucks Decisively

BY: RALPH ROUNTON

An outstanding team effort and a tenacious defense led the way as the Hope Bobcats tripped the Smackover Buckaroos 60-54 last night at Jones Field House.

This victory upped the Bobcat's conference mark to 6-4. The loss was Smackover's second of the conference season and lowered their record to eight wins and two defeats.

The win also kept the Bobcat's home record intact, as they have won each of their ten home games throughout the season.

The Bobcats quickly jumped to a 6-2 lead in the opening minutes. The Bucks of Smackover, however, soon began to find the range. They went on a nine point surge and held on to lead the Cats, 14-12, after one period of play.

Using their patented fast break to its full potential, Hope jumped out to a six point lead early in the second quarter. The lead promptly began to dwindle, though, and finally Smackover took a lead and the Bobcats trailed at the half by 30-29.

The pace settled down in the third stanza. The Cats led most of the way before falling to another Smackover spurt. After three periods the game was even-up at 39-41.

Both teams hit a hot streak in the final chapter with neither team getting an advantage. Led Cats finally began to take the upper hand. Seemingly to have solved the Bucks' frustrating defense, Hope moved to a 55-48 margin, with 2:30 remaining. At this point Smackover started a full-court press but never could challenge.

Leading the scoring attack for the Bobcats was Parris, who sacked for 27 points. Larry East popped 14, and Luther Shaw and Danny Griffiths had 8 apiece, and Stanley Reyenga contributed 3. Mike Holloway and Steve Daniel led Smackover with 17 and 14, respectively.

In the rebound department the Bobcats pulled down 43 rebounds. Individual leaders were Stan Parris with 20, Danny Griffiths had 10, and Larry East had six.

The junior game was won by Smackover as they led all the way to win 58-31. The loss left the Hope Bobkittens still winless in district play.

Leading the Hope scoring was Ronny Brown with 11, David Still. Tonight the junior and senior boysboys teams travel to Magnolia to do battle with the Panthers with the Panthers. First game begins at 6 p.m.

After Weeks
No Peace
Is in Sight

WASHINGTON (AP) — No peace in sight. After agitated weeks of diplomatic maneuvering, rumors, reports and hints that the North Vietnamese were putting out peace feelers, the prospects for an end to the war at this moment are zero.

Thus the climax and conclusion of a major effort by President Johnson to get it across to an often critical world that it's the North Vietnamese, not the United States, who show no signs of wanting to stop the fighting.

His critics, no doubt, will call it propaganda. He can say it's his earnest effort to tell this country and the world what the truth is. No matter. The result is the same.

In this effort Johnson and his secretary of state, Dean Rusk, worked in tandem. The President took up almost an entire news conference on Feb. 2 to say — in brief — that there were no "serious indications that other side is ready to stop the war."

Since the news conference was televised, and Johnson spoke almost entirely about Vietnam, it was equivalent to a 25-minute major address on the war by the President to the nation.

Between Feb. 2 and Thursday people within the administration continued to talk of its efforts to find peace.

Then this week Johnson said he will send his ambassador to the United Nations, Arthur J. Goldberg, on a fact-finding mission to 12 nations, including Vietnam, a journey which could be interpreted as a peace-finding mission.

On Wednesday the White House revealed Johnson — in reply to an appeal for peace by Pope Paul VI — said this country was seeking peace intensively but indicated this country would not cease military actions unless the North Vietnamese did likewise.

And Wednesday it was the White House which announced Rusk would have a televised news conference Thursday afternoon. An announcement of that kind is usually handled by the State Department.

Basically, all Rusk did was repeat what Johnson said on Feb. 2 at his news conference, although in doing so Rusk and the administration had another half hour on the nation's television screens to get their message across.

Rusk, referring to North Vietnam's hint that negotiations "could" be possible — if U.S. planes topped bombing the North — rejected the suggestion, called it a Communist propaganda trick to get the United States to stop the bombing "while they continue their military action by invasion."

"You can't stop this war," Rusk said, "simply by stopping half of it." This echoed Johnson who, in his Feb. 2 statements, pledged this country to see the war through.

Rusk said all diplomatic efforts so far have failed to find out what North Vietnam would do in a return for a halt to the bombing. This summed up the administration's case.

Rusk added: While the United States has been trying "in every way known to us to invite and to engage" in peace talks, "unfortunately I cannot report to you today any tangible forward movement in that direction."

Thus, what has happened early in 1967 is a repetition of what happened early in 1966, and the prospects for peace then were bleak, as another year of war later showed.

On Jan. 7, 1966 the State Department announced 14 points for peace in Southeast Asia, assuring the North Vietnamese peace talks could begin without "any preconditions."

Thursday Rusk had the same 14 points handed to newsmen before they left.

Okla. Team Has Widest Win Margin

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Southwestern State of Oklahoma is leading NALA basketball in average winning margin at 25.7 points and proving with its 17-3 record that margin is an accurate gauge of team strength.

Tied for second at 24.5 are a pair of high-scoring clubs, Lakeland, Wis., 16-2, and Ricker, Maine, 9-3. Ashland, Ohio, 15-2, is the NALA leader in defense at 44.1, with Southwestern second at 51.9, and Ashland is No. 8 in Margin at 19.4 points a game.

Arkansas AM&N, 16-5, is the team scoring leader at 107.5, with Stillman, Ala., second with 106 and Lakeland third on 105.6. Monmouth, N.J., is the tea, rebounding leader with a .668 percentage, Winston - Salem, N.C., leads in field shooting at .610 and Clarion, Pa., State in free throw accuracy with .833.

Earl Monroe of Winston-Salem continues the scoring leader with a 42.6 average, almost eight points a game ahead of Hank Sterken of Detroit College at 34.7. Next are Willie Scott, Alabama State, 34.3; Jim Garza, Detroit Tech, 32.1; and Al Tucker, Oklahoma Baptist, 31.1.

The field shooting leader at .717 is Charles Fry of Lincoln Memorial in Tennessee, followed by Bill Brantley, Jacksonville, Ala., State and Myron Moen, General Beadle State, S.D., both at .693.

Kent Andrews of McNeese State, La., is the free throw accuracy leader with .933, hitting 83 of 89.

Silents Play Perry's Here Sat. Night

Saturday night in Hope High Gym the Little Rock Silents will invade Hempstead to take on Perry's Truck basketball team in which should prove to be a very good and high scoring contest.

Perry's has met this team once before and won by a close score. Starting play for the night will be a team made up of 5th and 6th graders of Hope, playing against the sons of the Silents at 6:30 p.m.

Following will be a rematch between the Hope Lions and Kiwanis Clubs. All proceeds will go for the March of Dimes. Admission is 25 and 50 cents.

The three games Saturday brings together a lot of local athletic talent and a full house is expected. Over 1000 turned out for the Silents game at Prescott.

The Silents are a group of mutes but they are expert basketball players. This team won the World Olympics in Rome, Italy in 1954 and many on that team are still playing.

PITCHING—After Jack Fisher (11-14), Bob Shaw (12-14), it's a wasteland. Don Cardwell (6-6), with Pirates last year, will start. Lefty Tug McGraw (2-9) defeated Sandy Koufax two years ago. He's still riding a cloud. Bulgin is International League caliber. Jack Hamilton (6-13) effective for awhile last year, then collapsed. Rob Gardner, Dick Selma, Jerry Hinsley, Dick Rustock still struggling to attain major league status. RATING—C.

INFIELD—Old and slow. First baseman Ed Kranepool, the baby, hasn't had that good year everyone predicted. This is his fourth now. Ken Boyer (.266) slipped to 14 HR, 61 RBI. Roy McMillan probably at short again if Bud Harrelson doesn't improve hitting. If you're a better, bet on McMillan. Chuck Hiller, at second, inherits the nickname "Stone Fingers" now that Dick Stuart is retired. RATING—C.

OUTFIELD—Tommy Davis (.313), Cleon Jones (.275) set at two positions. Between rookie Don Bosch, Larry Stahl, formerly of As, far other spot. Stahl could surprise. Bosch, good fielder, Stahl an improved hitter. Jones could be star material. One problem, though. He misses signals—so many, in fact, that Wes Westrum benched him last year. RATING—B—.

CATCHING—Jerry Grote provides the defense. Unfortunately, nobody provides the offense. Back-up man John Stephenson hit .196 last season. Good opportunity for rookies Greg Goosen, John Sullivan (.328 at Vancouver). RATING—C—.

BENCH—Infielder Ed Bressoud, capable but creaking. Infielders Bart Shirley, Derrell Griffith in Dodger chain last year. Outfielder Ron Swoboda still potent weapon on offense and risk on defense. Al Luplow, Johnny Lewis hanging on in outfield. RATING—C.

SUMMARY—Mets trades will hurt Ron Hunt, Dennis Ribant were two young, capable performers. Would have had a tighter infield with Hunt at second. Ribant most consistent pitcher last year. No pitching, weak infield, catching. PREDICTION—Hoosiermoon is over for Westrum, back to 10th.

Alston is Silence And a Smile

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Alstonologists generally agree that what the man doesn't say often is more important than what he does say.

Walter Alston confirms it. When asked if he thought it was true, Alston merely smiled.

Asked if he thought the Dodgers got the better of the trades which brought them Bob Bailey (Pirates), Ron Hunt and Jim Hickman (Mets) in exchange for Maury Wills and Tommy Davis, Alston shrugged, hesitated, smiled and said, "We'll see, won't we?"

Ask him about Sandy Koufax's retirement (How many times this winter, Smokey?) and Alston will ramble on for two or three sentences about how important the great left-hander was to the Dodgers.

The key word in Alston's dissertation on the wonders of Koufax is "was." Press him about the absence of Sandy in '67, and Alston answers, "You never miss what you don't have... better that way."

Then he volunteered, "People ask me if we're going to miss Sandy, and I have to answer yes."

Now all the Dodger manager has to do is con his players into thinking that Koufax alone does not a pennant winner make.

"Not con," he said, "convince is a better word."

At the suggestion that the two trades were conceived in the mind of owner Walter O'Malley instead of by the usual general manager-manager skulld session method (with Buzzy Bava's), Alston exploded a long silence to say:

"I think many people have missed an important point in the trades. Sandy's leaving (the Dodger front office knew about it by the time the World Series was over) creates a void you might not be able to fill with five other pitchers."

"What the trades do is give us a little more hitting, shore up the defense a little. But there's always guesswork in any kind of trading."

Now maybe John Kennedy, who can certainly use his glove, will pick up his hitting with the chance to play shortstop regularly. He'll have that chance now.

"Hunt can field and hit, no doubt about that. We'd like to get Bailey's long ball in there as often as we can, probably at first base, or at least we'll try him there."

In other words, Walter, so

Mickey Mantle's conversion to first base prompted Jerry Coleman to recall the one day Joe DiMaggio spent on first in midsummer of 1950. Jerry was playing second. The game was in Washington, and the Senators got two men on base. A hard liner was hit to Phil Rizzuto at short. He threw to Coleman, doubling the man on second. Jerry's relay to DiMag at first had the runner, Irv Noren, easily beaten, but Irv neglected to slide. "We would have had a triple play," recalls Jerry, "but my throw glanced off Noren's shoulder and whistled past DiMag's head. Another inch, and I'd have ended his career right then."

Coleman is skeptical about Mantle's switch in light of the DiMaggio experiment. "After all," shrugs Jerry, "DiMag was a better athlete than Mickey, and he couldn't do it."

Every time Bob Hayes' success as a flanker with the Dallas Cowboys comes up, the refrain reads, "... but after all, Bob always considered himself a football player first and a track man second."

Pooh, says Richmond Flowers, who's somewhat in the same boat: "I believe Bob Hayes was a track man first." Flowers, the brilliant sophomore hurdler from Tennessee and an outstanding flanker on the football team, says baldly, "I like track better than football." At the same time, he pegs his career on the gridiron as a pro. "... after I hope to set a world record in the hurdles and compete in the '68 Olympics."

Bob Ward, the new Maryland football coach (and an All-American guard at the same school), says flatly, "Notre Dame in 1966 was the greatest football team I've ever seen." Bob had a ringside seat as an Army assistant coach. ...

It's not generally remembered that Kyle Rote, the old SMU and New York Giant star, also had an abbreviated career in baseball as a minor league outfielder. Kyle played for Corpus Christi in the old Gulf Coast League and was hitting a torrid .345 when he got a letter from the Giants, who also had signed him to play football in the fall. It said simply that any injury suffered by Kyle in baseball would automatically void the three-year, no-cut contract the Giants had given him—probably the first no-cut deal the Giants had made and negotiated by Kyle on advice of his old SMU buddy, Doak Walker. ... That same summer of 1950, Kyle stepped in a hole on a practice field the Giants were using in Jonesboro, Ark., and damaged both his knee and his career—"He was never the same back after that," noted Allie Sherman. ...

The hitless LA Dodgers get it from all sides. "Watching the Dodgers hit," veteran infielder Gene Freese told pitcher Don Drysdale, "is like watching a silent movie." ...

Bart Starr has the best sports banquet story of the winter: "Our 9-year-old son came in for lunch one day and tracked mud across the living room floor something awful. I chewed him out and sat down to have a sandwich. I asked my wife, Cherry, if she had done a couple of dozen or so letters that I really had to get out that afternoon. I had words with her right quick when she replied no. Then our 3-year-old, Bret, proceeded to spill his milk all over his lap. I spanked him and put him in the milk bed room. At that point, my wife hit the ceiling and said, 'Bart, what in the world is wrong with you?' ... I said, 'Well, honey, I've got a number of things to get done this afternoon because I've got a banquet to go to early tonight.' ... She said, 'What kind of banquet?' ... I said, 'Down in Appleton, they're giving me a Nice Guy award.' ... And she said, 'You're putting me on.'"

(Pot games on the tour are private matches with the other pros as they arrive in a new town and warmup for the tournament.)

"Sometimes they didn't want you in the games, other times they would annoy if you didn't try to get in."

"They would say, 'Come on, how 'bout joining us for a pot game?' acting as if they were your best friends, and then they wouldn't even talk to you for 10 frames."

"But as a pro, rookie or not, I wasn't going to let it get me down, not in front of everybody. Besides, it was the only way to get to know some of the big names and when they weren't looking, I figured I could learn something."

To go with the pot games, there was also the silent treatment and seemingly endless razzing about beardless wonders and whatnot.

"They wouldn't talk if you were losing, that is. If you happened to be winning, they wouldn't shut up."

8th Closed Session of Senate Discussed Bypassing Rockefeller

By GEORGE F. BARTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — "We might as well let the members of the press stay in here," said Sen. Dan T. Sprick of Little Rock before the Arkansas Senate closed its doors Thursday for the eighth executive session of the current General Assembly. "They're going to know everything that goes on any way."

And sure enough, they did, including the fact that Sprick made a raging speech about the information leaks on previous sessions and castigated the person, "whoever you are," who had been responsible.

He hoped the guilty party would "carry his guilty feelings to the grave," Sprick shouted.

And according to notes taken during the closed meeting by Senate sources, the legislators also discussed plans (which proved unsuccessful) to by-pass Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller on two state board appointments and urged Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt to be more strict in his enforcement of Senate rules and decorum.

Britt, who stayed inside for the first few minutes of the hour-long session, called by Sen. J. Hugh Lookadoo of Arkadelphia, was warmly applauded for his work as the Senate's presiding officer, but Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock urged him to be a little more stern about making the senators follow their own rules.

"He's been a little delicate in his dealings with us so far," Howell said, adding that he didn't intend the remark as criticism, and that he thought Britt had done a good job.

Lookadoo wanted the Senate to appoint H. Grady Smith of Arkadelphia, a former business manager of Henderson State Teachers College, to fill a vacancy on the Henderson board of Trustees.

Sprick wanted to appoint former Rep. Glenn F. Walther of Little Rock for a position on the state Public Service Commission.

Harold L. Stephenson of De Witt previously had held the Henderson post, and former State Penitentiary Supt. Dan D. Stephens had been serving on the PSC. Their terms expired Jan. 14.

Section 6-801 of the Arkansas Statutes provides that when the governor fails to submit the name of an appointee within 20 days after a vacancy occurs, the Senate shall proceed to fill the vacancy with an appointment of its own.

It was repeatedly stressed during the secret session that the law said the Senate "shall" proceed to make the appointment.

Thursday marked the 20th day after the terms of Stephenson and Stephens expired.

Lookadoo wanted to know whether the Senate would go along with him if he introduced a resolution naming Smith to the Henderson job. To guide Lookadoo's thinking, the Senate voted by secret ballot and without announcing the results, hands.

turned the ballots over to him. When the Senate opened its doors and resumed its open session, Lookadoo and Sprick introduced resolutions naming their men to fill the vacancies.

Before either resolution could be read, however, Rockefeller submitted his own nominations: Warren Theis, a Pine Bluff businessman, for the Henderson position, and Jerry Thomasson of Arkadelphia, the unsuccessful Republican candidate for attorney general in the November general election, for the PSC.

Sprick immediately withdrew his resolution, with "no hard feelings" toward the governor, but Lookadoo elected to stick it out and see which got read first—his resolution or the governor's appointment message.

Britt called for the governor's messages. Lookadoo protested that the resolution had priority since it was on the desk first, and Britt recessed the Senate for five minutes and instructed the Rules Committee to give him a ruling on it.

Sen. Knox Nelson of Pine Bluff reported to the Senate after the recess that the governor's message was privileged matter and could be called up at any time, as long as it didn't interfere with a matter under consideration.

The clerk then read the governor's appointments.

Cyprus Dispute Discussion

ATHENS (AP)—Greek and Turkish ministers will resume discussions on the Cyprus dispute, a 12-hour Greek Council session decided Monday. The talks bogged down in Paris Dec. 19.

Greek caretaker Premier Ioannis Paraskevopoulos made the announcement after the council session called by King Constantine to discuss Cyprus policy. Greek political leaders and President Makarios of Cyprus attended the meeting.

The Turkish minority on the Mediterranean island demand equal partnership in government with the Greek Cypriot majority, whom they accuse of seeking union with Greece. Fighting broke out between the two groups in 1963. The next year a U.N. peace force was sent in to prevent further bloodshed.

The regulations again made the bureau unpopular with the outdoor advertising industry, which sent its protests to Congress.

"We believe that the wholesale elimination of an entire industry is far beyond the intent of Congress," one telegram read. Another said, "The highway beautification bill is a luxury the taxpayers cannot support or afford."

Some conservationists said the bureau did a good job within the context of the 1965 law, which they consider weak. But at least one critic, Mrs. Kenneth Robb Brown of Des Moines, Iowa, contends the regulations represent a surrender to the industry.

This is because "the public has no lobby," she said. "It has no organization to alert it, and only a pitiful few unskilled, part-time, unpaid people to argue its case once they are able to find out a few facts," she said.

As now written, the act requires removal of all billboards within 660 feet of the highway, unless in an industrial or commercial area. This would apply to both the 41,000-mile interstate system and the 220,000-mile primary system.

Of the more than 1 million billboards which would be dismantled, 889,000 would go by July 1, 1970, the rest by Jan. 1, 1973.

In all commercial and industrial areas no sign could be more than 650 square feet. The original proposal called for 350 square feet.

Signs must be 500 feet apart and cannot be located within 500 feet of a public park, forest, playground or scenic area designated by the state.

No sign could be located within 2,000 feet of an interchange or intersection at grade.

Signs with flashing or moving lights would also be barred except for those which give public service information such as time, date, temperature or weather.

"We're terribly concerned," said an official of another major union. "We hope it doesn't become a shooting match."

The would-be peacemakers in the labor movement said they hoped the battle could center on the issues and not on "personalities," but the auto workers' long indictment of Meany's leadership for a "vegetating" AFL-CIO appeared to put Reuther at a point of no return.

Cong Moving Boy Scouts of America Are Celebrating 57th Anniversary This Week Lunar Truce

By MARY ANITA LASETER

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnam's mass movement of supplies south during the lunar new year cease-fire may have ended any possible chance that the United States would refrain from bombing North Vietnam after the truce ends, U.S. sources say.

The South Vietnamese have announced a four-day cease-fire and the Viet Cong a seven-day suspension of shooting. The allies have not said whether they will resume offensive operations when the South Vietnamese period ends Sunday morning.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Thursday the extension of the four-day period was a subject "that can be looked into." But he said North Vietnam has accelerated its resupply movement during the truce and is not interested in a genuine cease-fire.

The U.S. command reported Friday that the North Vietnamese have increased truck and barge traffic southward five-fold during the truce.

Officials estimated that the Communists would be able to move 35,000 tons of supplies toward the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam while U.S. bombing was halted. A North Vietnamese army battalion in combat is believed to need about 100 tons of supplies a day.

New Battle on Highway Beautification

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new battle is shaping up over highway beauty, a project of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson which could result in the dismantling of more than 1 million billboards along major highways.

What triggered the newest round of controversy were the regulations drafted by the Bureau of Public Roads and submitted to Congress last month. They list the size, spacing and other criteria of signs which can be located along the 261,000 miles of interstate and primary highways.

The regulations again made the bureau unpopular with the outdoor advertising industry, which sent its protests to Congress.

"We believe that the wholesale elimination of an entire industry is far beyond the intent of Congress," one telegram read. Another said, "The highway beautification bill is a luxury the taxpayers cannot support or afford."

Last week this space was used to salute what is regarded as the grand-daddy of all the civic clubs — Rotary. It may come as a surprise to many that a younger group is, in fact, older from the standpoint of organization. We are speaking of the Boy Scouts of America, who are celebrating their 57th birthday this week.

In the period since its organization, 42 million boys and their leaders have been involved in the program of scouting. What about today? There are approximately 2,143,000 Cub Scouts in 56,750 packs; 1,870,000 Boy Scouts in 68,500 troops; and 317 Explorers in 22,650 posts. That's quite an army, but it isn't the entire story. There are 1,550,000 men and women serving as volunteer leaders, and 4,012 professional leaders!

If the hope of tomorrow lies in the youth of today—and we sincerely think that it does, then it's heartening to look at a program launched by the Boy Scouts of America not long ago. It carries the enthusiastic title "Breakthrough for Youth." It places emphasis on keeping Scouting always relevant to a changing world and the increasing needs and problems facing our boys.

Dr. Alfred A. Knox, Editor and Business Manager of the Arkansas Methodist, commented on this undertaking in this way: "There is evidence that this significant program is reaping rich dividends in helping boys to cope with the complexities of today's world and to meet the challenge of tomorrow with adequate moral and spiritual resources."

Since the adult population of this world seems to have achieved astonishing success at lowering spiritual and moral values and in providing bad examples for the next generation to follow, it is good to have a group of young people who strive to accomplish achievements that include "God and Country Award." This is held in high regard by everyone and never fails to make good news copy.

There's another thing about Scouting we'd like to mention. The generations of parents and youth often can't communicate with one another because they don't "dig" each other's language. As Dr. Knox explained, "Where the young man may fail to see any sense at all to the rules his parents, his teachers and his preacher may be urging him to adopt, he may very quickly catch on when his Boy Scout unit decides in democratic fashion that this is exactly the way in which they want to live and work together as a group."

So, hats off to the Boy Scouts of America on their 57th birthday, and we want to put a special feather in the cap of each and every adult who guides them in their great program.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Twelve University of Michigan students are revelling in the joys of the draft, but the draft they dreamily endorse comes from the barrel, not the Selective Service.

By taking turns at the bar, the beer-drinking team has been at it for 560 hours downtown Fraser's pub and the end is not in sight. The original goal — to shatter the U.S. record of 320 hours set in 1956 by the Michigan State squad — went down the hatch long ago.

It stated Jan. 5 when the 12 — nine men and three women — discovered they all had a taste for beer.

The rules require a team member to down 12 ounces of brew every 30 minutes while in the bar and the total now stands at 13,460 ounces.

Bill Fraser, pub owner, has his bartenders keeping score. "Why not?" he asked. "Spectators are coming in to watch. And, of course, we encourage them to participate."

Mike Truax, team captain and a senior in civil engineering, says the team uses the platoon system, allowing unlimited substitution.

Cutting classes is forbidden and Ginger Redd, a red-haired lass on the beer brigade, says she has been "studying harder than ever" since the spree began.

"My love life is better, too," she said. "My romantic inclinations have increased."

"Unfortunately, so has my waist line," Miss Redd said. "All my skirts are getting just a little bit tight."

Truax estimates each team member spends about 20 hours a week in the pub, which is open from 8:30 a. m. to 1:30 a. m.

Jack Weiman, a graduate student in English, is the anchor man. His consumption amounts to about 8,400 ounces, nearly equal to the entire input of the Michigan State championship campaign 11 years ago.

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—A legal adviser to Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has asked for a delay in a pending decision on extradition of four escaped convicts from Tucker Prison Farm, Ark.

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said Wednesday the adviser sought the delay so he could find out about conditions at the prison farm.

The four prisoners are Richard G. Emroy, 39, James Stephens, 22, Don C. Smith, 18, and Jimmy Pike, 35. They are being held in Baker.

WR Attacked by Senate, Britt Defends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt stepped in Friday as acting governor while Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was out of the state and used the occasion to challenge a senator to try to override Rockefeller's veto of the teacher bonus bill.

Sen. John F. Gibson of Dermott spoke critically of Rockefeller's veto of the bill distributing $2.79 million to the teachers and Britt said:

"Senator, if you feel that strongly about it, I would suggest that you attempt to override the governor's veto, and I remind you that it's your prerogative to do so," said Britt from his chair as president of the Senate.

Rockefeller was at Springfield, Ill., to speak at a Lincoln Day event.

"This is by no means in the way of an apology, but in the way of an excuse," Britt explained to the Senate later. "I am acting governor today and I felt compelled to fire back when the governor came under attack."

Britt told newsmen he had intended the remark to question Gibson's sincerity.

Gibson, after Britt's remark, began polling the Senate to see if he had enough support to override the governor's veto.

In the House, the representatives adopted the clincher motion after the 43-44 defeat of a compromise constitutional convention bill. The motion requires a two-thirds vote to bring the bill up again.

Opponents of the measure said they doubted if the legislature could justify the cost if the electorate defeated a new document drawn by the convention.

They agreed that the state's present constitution was outdated in many respects but they didn't think a new document would be approved in light of the difficulty in amending the 1874 constitution.

"We're fixing to spend a considerable amount of money, then the people are going to beat the con dog out of it," said Rep. Gean McDonald of Benton.

The rules require a team member to down 12 ounces of brew every 30 minutes while in the bar and the total now stands at 13,460 ounces.

Bill Fraser, pub owner, has his bartenders keeping score. "Why not?" he asked. "Spectators are coming in to watch. And, of course, we encourage them to participate."

Mike Truax, team captain and a senior in civil engineering, says the team uses the platoon system, allowing unlimited substitution.

Cutting classes is forbidden and Ginger Redd, a red-haired lass on the beer brigade, says she has been "studying harder than ever" since the spree began.

"My love life is better, too," she said. "My romantic inclinations have increased."

"Unfortunately, so has my waist line," Miss Redd said. "All my skirts are getting just a little bit tight."

Truax estimates each team member spends about 20 hours a week in the pub, which is open from 8:30 a. m. to 1:30 a. m.

Jack Weiman, a graduate student in English, is the anchor man. His consumption amounts to about 8,400 ounces, nearly equal to the entire input of the Michigan State championship campaign 11 years ago.

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—A legal adviser to Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has asked for a delay in a pending decision on extradition of four escaped convicts from Tucker Prison Farm, Ark.

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said Wednesday the adviser sought the delay so he could find out about conditions at the prison farm.

The four prisoners are Richard G. Emroy, 39, James Stephens, 22, Don C. Smith, 18, and Jimmy Pike, 35. They are being held in Baker.

The meetings were topped off by the black tie dinner party to which 135 guests were invited — all showing up despite the weather.
